LEE GULLEY IN THE TOILS

Charged With Selling Daughters For Immoral Purposes.

A sequel has developed to the case brought to light Monday when C. C. Igleheart was arrested for the attempt of rape of May Gulley, the fourteen year old daughter of Lee Gulley. On more than one occasion, Gulley has reported to the officers that one or both of his daughters had been attacked, and while every effort has been made to apprehend the guilty parties in every instance, the trails all led back to the father of the two girls. This time it has developed that Gulley had made a bargain with two men to deliver his two daughters to them for immoral purposes. The girls met the men in a bunk car, and Gulley laid his plans, that at the proper time he would appear and hold up the men for a sum of money, besides what he had already received, or charge them with rape. The girls were wise to the scheme, and when their father appeared, one jumped from the car and ran up the track screaming. The plan worked smoothly until Igleheart gave to the officers his side of the transaction. The officers working on the evidence given them by Igleheart, soon established the fact that Gulley was the instigator of the whole disgraceful proceedings.

Gulley was arrested Monday night and placed in jail.

O'DONNELL SUIT COMPROMISED

Claim For $8,250 Allowed, But Has to Pay Other Heirs.

Tuesday the suit of Mary O'Donnel against Dr. J. A. Mann, administrator of her mother's estate, for the sum of $8,250 for services to her mother during the last twenty years of her life, was compromised by the parties and allowed by Judge S. N. Wilson of the probate court, before whom the suit was brought. A jury had been assembled when the parties agreed to compromise.

Miss O'Donnel had lived with her mother on a farm near Wellington for the past twenty years. Mrs. O'Donnel died without a will and when the administrator sought to divide the estate equally among the heirs, Miss O'Donnel brought suit for services. The farm consists of 100 acres and is valued at $8,000. Under the terms of the compromise, Miss O'Donnel gets the farm by paying the claims of the other heirs, which in the aggregate will amount to $4,500, leaving the plaintiff $3,500 for her share. There are five other children.

Miss O'Donnel was represented by Chas. Lyons; the administrator by Horace F. Blackwell, and the other heirs by William Aull, Sr.
